Women in eDiscovery™ Launches Los Angeles Chapter in Conjunction with LegalTech West Coast

Organization designed to bring together businesswomen across the globe interested in technology related to the legal industry

Minneapolis, MN – June 18, 2008 – Women in eDiscovery today announced that there is a new chapter opening in Los Angeles. Women in eDiscovery is an organization that brings together businesswomen interested in technology related to the legal industry and provides opportunities to help each other grow personally and professionally through leadership, education, networking support, and national recognition. The new chapter will officially launch in conjunction with LegalTech West Coast, June 26-27, 2008, at the Los Angeles Convention Center.

LegalTech attendees interested in joining the Los Angeles chapter can visit BOOTH 503 for more information.

“Our organization has expanded and grown at a rapid rate both nationally and across the globe. We are sure to reach the 2,000-member mark this summer and look forward to expanding chapters into Richmond, Tampa Bay, Orlando, Kansas City and Vancouver, BC soon,” stated Lana Schell, national co-founder of Women in eDiscovery. “There was a need for a forum where women could gather, exchange ideas and information, and receive guidance and support. Women in eDiscovery will continue to be that forum for years to come.”

National co-founders include Margaret Havinga from the District of Columbia law firm Williams and Connolly, Shawna Childress from Navigant Consulting and Lana Schell of Clearwell Systems.

Details of LegalTech West Coast can be found at www.ALMEvents.com.
